Rev. Rebecca Armstrong & Jennifer Armstrong

“Lost Mothers of the Movement:
Celebrating Influential Women in Unitarian Universalist History”

with Jennifer Armstrong and Rev. Rebecca Armstrong

Queen Isabella Jagiellon: Mother of Tolerance – mother of King John Sigismund; Mary Moody Emerson: Muse of the Mind – the spiritual mother/father of Ralph Waldo Emerson; Olympia Brown: Defender of the Flame –The first woman ordained as minister in the U.S., in her words coming over one hundred years ago, might just as well have been written yesterday, We have hoped to make the world safe for democracy; to establish a league of peace; but the very first necessity in reform work is the recognition of the divine capabilities in humans. The foundation of democracy is the realization that every human being is entitled to the opportunities of life, worthy of respect, and requiring an atmosphere of justice and liberty for development.

“Bukele & the US Carceral Archipelago”

with Jorge Cuéllar

Jorge Cuéllar will talk about Kilmar Ábrego García, the Maryland man recently deported to El Salvador's notorious CECOT maximum security prison alongside hundreds of other non-criminal Salvadorans and Venezuelans now disappeared in Nayib Bukele's gulags. He will examine this phenomenon trans-nationally. Cuéllar will discuss the place of CECOT in Bukele's economic plans, and how his servitude to the U.S. deportation machine marks a new turn in U.S./Salvadoran relations. Imperiling us all as democratic erosion marches on, Salvadorans in the U.S. and in El Salvador are articulating ways to resist Bukele's punitive enclosures and challenge the legitimacy of this draconian, dehumanizing, pact that has emerged between Trumpism and Bukelismo.

• Jorge E. Cuéllar is a scholar of politics, culture, and daily life in modern Central America. His research and teaching focus on Central American Studies, Cultural Studies, Race, Migration, and Critical Social Theory. He is an assistant professor at Dartmouth College.

Todd Pierce: "JFK's Principles of Peace vs The Conservative Movement in US Politics"

Todd Pierce is an attorney who in the late 1980's identified himself as a National Security Conservative. That began to change after service in the first Gulf War 1990-1991. In his last assignment as a US Army JAG Corps attorney, he served as a Defense Attorney for the Guantanamo Military Commissions where he personally witnessed the workings of "Conservative Political/Legal Theory," as he came to more fully understand it. As a result, after retiring from the military at the end of 2012, while continuing to work on Guantanamo cases, he continued his education at Georgetown in Mideast Studies, and from 2016 - 2018, he studied at The New School in New York City from which he received an M. A. in Politics, with focused study of political theory in the tradition of Hannah Arendt. He has a special interest in the origins and growth of fascism. He is a former member of Veteran Intelligence Professionals for Sanity and has published articles in Common Dreams, Consortium News, and Antiwar.com.

"Andy Davis' 2nd Annual Bicycle Storytelling Tour:
'Quixotic, a one-man show'"

In this engrossing and humorous one-man show, storyteller Andy Davis celebrates his long relationship with Don Quixote, and the capacity of art to impact the world. Through personal story, scenes from the novel, glimpses into the author's life, and a snapshot from history, he connects the themes of Cervantes's masterwork to the enduring questions as to how humans should live.

• Andy Davis got his start as a storyteller telling comic tales by candlelight in Mexican refugee camps 30 years ago. His current work weaves together personal narrative, folklore, and grassroots history. Andy lives with his wife, adult daughter, and their elderly beagle in a little home-made house in Tamworth, New Hampshire. This CCB performance is part of a three-week, 800-mile bicycle storytelling tour through all six New England states. www.andydavisstoryteller.com
